IS THE COURSE RIGHT FOR ME?

Yes, if...

- You have completed the CIPR Advanced Certificate in Public Relations
- You are an experienced PR professional without an industry specific qualification
- You are working in any field of public relations (e.g. media relations, internal communications or public affairs)
- You want to learn about the strategic role and functions of the public relations practitioner.

The full CIPR enrolment criteria can be found at the end.

WHO WILL TEACH ME?

Our teaching team members all have great experience. They'll not only get you thinking about the theory but how it works in practice too. This course is taught by:

Chris Tucker

With more than 25 years' in public relations working in the voluntary, public and private sectors, her last in-house position was as PR Director for the Barclays Group globally. Chris now specialises in media training and business mentoring for executives working in communications and PR consultancy.

Heather Yaxley

Heather worked at the sharp-end of PR in the motor industry before establishing Applause Consultancy in 2000 to advise on communication strategies and educational initiatives. A thought-leader with a presence across digital and traditional media, Heather is the author of the Greenbanana blog and chapter author of the 4th edition of Alison Theaker's Public Relations Handbook and co-editor of the Strategic Public Relations Toolkit.

Kate Lomax

Kate is a guest lecturer for PR Academy. Having completed the CIPR Diploma with flying colours, she has a first-hand understanding of the student experience. With more than ten years' experience working in marketing, PR and media, Kate is currently working for Ernst & Young as a Media Relations Manager implementing proactive communications across a range of different sectors.

HOW WILL I LEARN?

Our face to face classes are held in central London. We mostly use the lovely Etc Venues at Norton Folgate, Bishopsgate which is near Liverpool Street Station. The venue is designed especially for training with lovely food, WIFI and light, modern classrooms.

Our online courses are taught through live webinars (which are also recorded), online discussions and guided reading. We put a high level of tutor support into online courses – you are guided throughout with a tutor always on hand to help.

All students receive access to PR Academy's online learning centre with discussion forums and links to useful resources and an online library with a range of e-books and papers.

What you need to get started

- Access to a computer with internet access and Microsoft Office applications (Word and PowerPoint) and Adobe Acrobat Reader.
- A headset/audio for your PC for taking part in webinars using Adobe Connect
- An email address
- As well as the tuition time, you'll need to set aside approximately 6 to 8 hours per week/over the time of the course for self-study. This might increase as you work towards submitting your assessments.

HOW IS THE COURSE ASSESSED?

Assessments are directly related to each study unit – i.e. one assignment per unit. These assess professional knowledge, vocational skills and personal development.

The purpose of the assignments is to enable you to demonstrate knowledge and application of core areas/concepts using critical thinking and problem solving skills (which are core management competencies and employer requirements).

They are intended to be of value in professional practice – i.e. reflect real world issues and activities, as well as meeting robust assessment criteria.

The style of the assignment reflects type of work employers look for and require a high standard of written communication (encouraging strong writing skills which employer consultation has highlighted).

Students will be encouraged to develop work related projects for assignments to maintain the close relationship with real world applications, to enable them to make better connections between concepts and their current roles, and to offer evidence to employers of the practical relevance of the course.

Unit 1 Assessment: executive report (2000 words) and summary situation analysis (2000 words)

Unit 2 Assessment: thought leadership article (2000 words) and statement of reflection (2000 words)

Unit 3 Assessment: management proposal (2000 words) and supporting review of proposal for change (2,000 words)

See full syllabus at the end.

SYLLABUS

New CIPR Professional PR Diploma; Syllabus and Assessment.

Syllabus

The CIPR Professional PR Diploma syllabus is based on professional practice underpinned by core PR principles, models and concepts.

The syllabus incorporates three separate units.

- The first unit is focused on the PR strategy and planning process, with an emphasis on research that establishes robust communication objectives, related to the organisation's goals.
- The second unit is focused on communication and engagement, with an emphasis on content, which reflects employers' views that management of content across the organisation is an essential competence.
- The third unit is focused on leadership of PR activities, with an emphasis on management of projects, campaigns and resources; internal stakeholders, the PR team and key suppliers; and on measurement and evaluation.

Students would be awarded a CIPR Professional PR Diploma by successfully completing all three units.

The learning outcomes for each unit are detailed below, after the note on assignments.

One assignment task at the end of each unit which assesses the student's ability to apply knowledge to a workplace context completes the programme.

Assignments

The purpose of the assignments is to enable candidates to demonstrate knowledge and application of core areas/concepts listed under each unit using critical thinking and problem solving skills (which are core management competencies and employer requirements in published studies).

They are intended to be of value in professional practice – i.e. reflect real world issues and activities, as well as meeting robust assessment criteria and reflecting the types of outputs that are acceptable at this level of study within a postgraduate environment. The style of the assignment 'output' reflects a type of document required from PR managers in the workplace, which will require a high standard of written communication (encouraging the attention to strong writing skills which employer consultation has highlighted). Each assignment requires research skills enabling a variety of methods to be learned and demonstrated across the course, which again is a strategic professional competency.

Students will be encouraged to develop work related projects for assignments to maintain the close relationship with real world applications, to enable them to make better connections between concepts and their current roles, and to offer evidence to employers of the practical relevance of the course.

Assessment and grading

The assignments are evidence of achievement of a professional standard. Together, success in all three assignments will demonstrate that the student has achieved an understanding of the processes and concepts needed to operate at a higher level in the profession and can demonstrate this in the workplace.

The award of the CIPR Professional PR Diploma is based simply on achieving the standard, a pass in all three units, but with the potential for the best work to be considered for special commendation by the Awarding Body, from recommendations by centres of their outstanding work. This offers a clearer focus on what the required standard is at the centre level, but still allows motivation for the best students to present exceptional work.

Unit details, learning outcomes and assessments

Unit 1: PR Strategy and Planning

Scope

This Unit situates public relations within a strategic management framework, enabling critical and ethical examination of the role and responsibilities of the function, and senior practitioners, within a contemporary context. It considers practical challenges and conceptual underpinnings relating to public relations strategy and planning in a variety of situations and types of organisation. The importance of organisational and functional objectives is emphasised with a focus on research and analysis to support problem identification, stakeholder mapping and objective setting.

An analytical perspective is applied to encourage a reflexive approach in examining candidates' own experience alongside case studies of organisations and scenarios.

Unit Objectives

At the end of this Unit, candidates will be able to:

- Examine the strategic importance of organisational branding and reputation
- Assess how different PR disciplines work effectively together
- Understand the interface between public relations and other organisational functions
- Assess the relationship between corporate and PR objectives
- Use secondary research methods for situation analysis, environment monitoring and issues identification, including risk assessment.
- Analyse and apply PR planning models
- Develop creative approaches to problem identification
- Analyse data to generate insights to inform PR planning
- Undertake stakeholder identification and mapping
- Set PR objectives
- Produce an evidence-based situation analysis summary
- Produce an executive report

Unit 1 Assessment: Executive report (and summary situation analysis)

Aim: To enable students to demonstrate competence in undertaking an analysis of a case study situation to inform specific PR objectives and strategy.

Topic of inquiry: Students will be required to evidence professional judgement in identifying a suitable case study as their chosen topic of inquiry. This could be based on the student's own organisation, a client, another organisation of the student's choice or a broader societal situation that can be associated with public relations activities.

Submission: The assignment will comprise:

1. 2,000-word executive report comprising:
 - A clear and concise statement defining the case study situation, justifying its relevance as a problem or opportunity facing a specific organisation and/or sector, and verifying that it can be addressed by strategic public relations.
 - Overview of the secondary research methodology and analytical approach used to collect evidence of the situation and provide insight into its current or potential impact on the organisation and/or sector and its stakeholders.
 - Discussion and substantiation of the key findings and outcome of the research and analysis
 - Identification and explanation of PR objectives (derived from the research and analysis)
2. Supporting summary analysis of secondary research findings (maximum of 2,000 additional words).

Completion of the assignment involves the following activities:

- Reflection – students are required to use problem identification concepts and approaches to identify a relevant topic of inquiry. This will be a current concern or opportunity for a specific organisation and/or sector, and may relate to the candidate's own experience.
- Fact finding – students are required to undertake data collection using a range of secondary research methods (literature, archives, published surveys, reports, etc.) to examine the chosen the chosen topic of inquiry.
- Insight – students are required to use a range of appropriate models, tools and methods to analysis the external and internal environment, the organisation or societal issue and stakeholder groups.
- Communication – students are required to review and structure their analysis of a situation in the form of an executive report.

Unit focus: Situation analysis

Topic examples:

- Changing attitudes towards female employment in the construction sector
- Increasing public participation in local elections
- Applying a PESO communications strategy within a specific organisation

Unit 2: PR Content, Communications and Engagement

Scope

This Unit focuses on PR strategies involving content, communications and engagement. It investigates the contemporary media landscape (including digital and ICT developments) and helps candidates to develop creative solutions, create and curate multimedia content and apply communications concepts to a variety of situations facing a range of organisations.

A professional approach emphasises the importance of ethical practice, maintaining trust, reputation management, and informed judgement. Candidates are encouraged to draw on their own experience alongside case study examples of campaigns and strategic practice.

Unit Objectives

At the end of this Unit, candidates will be able to:

- Appraise the contemporary media landscape
- Develop a compelling strategic narrative
- Employ creative problem solving approaches
- Examine the processes of multi-media content creation and curation
- Develop key messages, strategic narratives and apply storytelling techniques

- Critically assess the use of persuasion in PR campaigns and communication activities
- Understand the value of listening to stakeholders
- Apply issues management principles to practice
- Critically assess the role of dialogue within professional practice
- Undertake social media community management
- Use participant observation and content analysis research methods to reflect on professional practice
- Produce a thought-leadership article

Unit 2 Assessment: Thought leadership article (and statement of reflection)

Aim: To enable students to demonstrate competence in strategic communication and stakeholder engagement through production of a thought leadership article

Topic of inquiry: Students will be required to evidence professional judgement in identifying a suitable campaign, communication activity or other aspect of strategic practice as their chosen topic of inquiry. This could be based on the student's own experience or broader public relations practice.

Submission: The assignment will comprise:

1. 2,000-word thought leadership article that is:
 - Suitable for publication by a reputable business title such as Harvard Business Review.
 - Structured and written in a professional style with points and arguments supported by reference to the chosen campaign, communication activity or aspect of strategy practice.
 - Effective in communicating an expert perspective on the chosen topic with reference to relevant concepts, models or theories.
 - Note: This is not an essay or journal article and does not require formal academic references
2. Supporting statement of personal reflection (maximum of 2,000 additional words)
Completion of the assignment involves the following activities:
 - Rationale for selecting the chosen topic of inquiry and featured concepts, models or theories, learning derived from examining the example and how the thought leadership article will inform the student's future practice.
 - Self-reflection – students are required to identify a relevant topic of inquiry, which may be a current campaign, communication activity or other aspect of strategic practice for a specific organisation and/or sector, and may relate to the candidate's own experience.
 - Fact finding – data collection using a range of secondary research methods (literature, archives, published surveys, reports, etc.) to examine the chosen topic of inquiry and relevant concepts, models or theories.
 - Insight – statement of reflection demonstrating critical consideration of the data collected, concepts from theory and practice, personal learning and future application.
 - Communication – construction of an evidence-based thought leadership article that seeks to transfer knowledge through a narrative assessment of the chosen topic of inquiry, supported by the statement of reflection.

Unit focus: Professional practice

Topic examples:

- Building a Facebook community
- Engaging stakeholders in a centenary campaign
- Developing a listening culture

Unit 3: PR Management, Measurement and Evaluation

Scope

This Unit concentrates on performance improvement in respect of the management, measurement and evaluation of professional PR practice. It offers critical examination of the effectiveness of public relations strategies, campaigns and programmes.

Principles relating to accountability, socio-cultural considerations, ethical practice and continuous professional development will be applied. Candidates will be able to examine their own processes and practices alongside case study examples.

Unit Objectives

At the end of this Unit, candidates will be able to:

- Advise and coach senior managers
- Critically evaluate integrated campaign management
- Apply project management techniques
- Assess approaches to budget and resource management
- Apply principles of ethical practice
- Undertake project risk assessment and management
- Review approaches and competencies for team management
- Examine processes underpinning effective agency and client relationships and management
- Understand how to appraise data to monitor the efficiency and effectiveness of PR activities
- Measure and evaluate outputs and outcomes
- Use qualitative research methods to obtain feedback on public relations management
- Produce management reports outlining recommendations for performance improvement

Unit 3 Assessment: Management proposal outlining recommendations for performance improvement

Aim: To enable students to demonstrate competence in evaluating the ethics and effectiveness of professional practice.

Topic of inquiry: Students will be required to evidence professional judgement in identifying a suitable campaign, communication activity or other aspect of strategic practice as their chosen topic of inquiry. This could be based on the student's own organisation, a client, another organisation of the student's choice or a broader area of professional public relations practice.

Submission: The assignment will comprise:

1. 2,000-word management proposal comprising:
 - Identification and justification of the chosen topic of inquiry
 - Critical evaluation of the campaign, activity or other aspect of practice with reference to its management and measurement, with specific focus on questions regarding ethics and effectiveness.
 - Recommendations for improvement drawing on data analysis and performance indicators
2. Supporting review of proposal for change (maximum of 2,000 additional words) including:
 - Overview of secondary data research undertaken.
 - Feedback on recommendations proposed in the report obtained from qualitative research (such as 1-2 brief interviews with practitioners or line managers)

Completion of the assignment involves the following activities:

- Self-reflection – students are required to identify a relevant topic of inquiry. This will be a recent campaign, communication activity or other aspect of strategic practice for a specific organisation and/or sector, and may relate to the candidate's own experience
- Fact finding – students are required to undertake secondary research (using literature, archives, published surveys, reports, etc.) to inform recommendations.
- Insight – students are required to determine recommendations for performance improvements and review these through feedback (qualitative input) of proposals for change.
- Communication – present performance improvement recommendations for the topic of inquiry in the form of a professional management proposal (with supporting evidence).

Unit focus: Evaluation

Topic examples:

- Examining the workflow for the production of an annual report
- Improving the return on investment of international car launches
- Reviewing the strategic objectives of the public relations function
