SYLLABUS

The CIPR specialist diploma (public affairs) focuses on the process of policy formation and the wider corporate communications and reputational context in which public affairs operates. It is focussed on professional practice and explores the concepts, theories and knowledge required to develop capabilities in research, planning, execution and evaluation of public affairs activities. An analytical perspective is applied to encourage candidates to take a reflective approach in examining their own experience alongside case studies of organisations and scenarios.

Qualification objectives

Successful candidates will be able to:

- 1 Apply key concepts in public affairs including:
 - Typologies of political and democratic systems and government structures;
 - Approaches to policy formation and decision making within these systems;
 - Researching key political institutions and actors;
 - Analysis and mapping of linkages between political stakeholders and their influences;
 - Policy making processes;
 - Interactions between political stakeholders;
 - Recent developments in public affairs including the rise of populism and the increasing influence of social media;
 - The employment of, and differences between, methods of political science research (including content analysis, policy analysis, (quasi) experimental methods, polling and surveys, interviews and focus groups).
- 2 Discuss the contribution of the professional practitioner in strategic planning including:
 - Policy development and strategic planning processes within organisations, including the role of the public affairs/political communication function;
 - Linking organisational strategy to public affairs work through reputation and issues management;
 - How to conduct a situational and risk analysis to inform policy development and strategic planning (incorporating issues management, political influence, stakeholder engagement, crisis scenarios, and social responsibility).
- 3 Critically evaluate public affairs issues and campaign management including:
 - How to deploy direct and indirect approaches in relationship building and political communications, including online options;
 - Campaigning; issues; tactics; mediated communicative activities (traditional and digital) and agenda setting; campaigning as public affairs work (aims, tactics, channels, research and evaluation);
 - The importance of psychology, including credibility and personality, in political communications, and contrasting rhetorical approaches;
 - How to identify and evaluate appropriate channels for communicating policies and positions, including traditional media and social media;
 - How to operate ethically in the political environment to enhance organisational reputation, minimise risk and secure or maintain policy change or resourcing.

HOW IS THE COURSE ASSESSED?

Assessment: executive report and summary situation analysis

Aim: to enable candidates to demonstrate competence in undertaking an analysis of a case study situation/issue to inform specific public affairs objectives and strategy.

Topic of inquiry: candidates will be required to evidence professional judgement in identifying a suitable case study as their chosen topic of inquiry. This could be based on the candidate's own organisation, a client, another organisation of the candidate's choice or a broader societal situation that can be associated with public affairs activities.

Submission: the assignment will comprise:

1. A 3,000-word (+/- 10%) executive report comprising:
 - a) A clear and concise statement defining the case study/issue, justifying its relevance as a problem or opportunity facing a specific organisation and/or sector, and verifying that it can be addressed by a public affairs strategy;
 - b) Description of the analytical approach used to collect evidence of the issue and provide insight into its current or potential impact on the organisation and/or sector and its stakeholders;
 - c) Discussion and substantiation of the key findings and outcome of the research and analysis;

d) Identification and explanation of public affairs objectives and strategy (derived from the research and analysis).

2. Supporting 2,000-word (maximum) summary analysis of secondary research findings including:

- Overview of secondary research undertaken;
- Relevant research methodology;
- Frameworks and models used to inform recommendations;
- Discussion of the ethical challenges encountered in the process.

Completion of the assignment involves the following activities:

- Reflection – candidates are required to use problem identification concepts and approaches to identify a relevant topic of inquiry. This will be a current issue of concern (or opportunity) for a specific organisation and/or sector, and may relate to the candidate's own experience.
- Fact finding – candidates are required to undertake data collection using a range of secondary research methods (literature, archives, published surveys, reports, etc.) To examine the chosen topic of inquiry.
- Insight – candidates are required to use a range of appropriate models, tools and methods to analyse the external and internal environment, the organisation or societal issue and relevant stakeholder groups.
- Communication – candidates are required to review and structure their analysis of a situation in the form of an executive report.

Example topics

New regulations on environment for a particular industry

Punitive taxes on excess profits in the financial sector

Securing rights for a neglected minority

Setting up a lobbying process with brussels post-brexit

Word count

A substantive response is necessary to meet the requirements for a pass.

Bibliographies and footnotes are not included in the word count. Footnotes must not contain appendices or be used to include additional text that should have been in the main body of the work. The word count must be recorded in the appropriate space provided on the cover sheet and at the end of the text in the main document.

Candidates are allowed a +/- 10% leeway on the word count for the executive report. Anything outside this allowance will be penalised and may result in the assessment being graded fail.

ENROLMENT CRITERIA?

This course is aimed at experienced practitioners who want to develop their strategic public affairs and management skills with the aim of taking on more senior roles.
